THE JEWISH ROLL OF HONOR OF TORONTO

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

In times of war, the roll of honor consists of those who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country. Who shall comprise the roll of honour in times of peace? Those who are making sacrifices to advance the cause of humanity—the physician who spends his life in his laboratory to discover a vaccine or to isolate a germ, and who when successful gives his findings to the world; the man in public life who refuses to succumb to corruption, who serves the public without the hope of reward; the public-spirited citizens who voluntarily shoulder the burden of the social outcasts, of the poor and disinherited. Few there are who have the training and genius to devote themselves to science; few there are who have the talents and the capacities to enter public life, but all can get on the roll of honour by assuming the responsibility for the care of the sick and helpless. Not all can contribute large sums, not all have the leisure to volunteer their services, but there are few so destitute who cannot give something towards the maintenance of that small class who have by dint of adverse circumstances become public charges.

The Federation of Jewish Charities, which attends to the philanthropic needs of 40,000 Jews, has but a membership of less than 1,500. On Sunday next it is launching a campaign to raise 1,000 more, members. Its objective is to enlist the interest of the small merchants and workers in its great constructive work. The Jew has distinguished himself for his achievements in the field of philanthropy. The Toronto Jews have thus far not fully responded to Federation's call, because the whole idea of Federation with its scientific handling of charity cases has been alien to the customs and habits of people who love to do personal charity. The Federation in its years of existence has proved its worth. It now merits the support of every Jew in the city. Its call for membership should be enthusiastically answered. Every Jew who is not on its books should enroll himself at once. The membership roster of Federation constitutes Toronto's Jewish Roll of Honour. Are you on it?

JEWS AND THE ELECTIONS

My article of two weeks ago on "Jewish Candidates," in which my thesis was that a man's religious affiliation should neither qualify nor disqualify him for public office, and that Jews as Jews have no need for special spokesmen, has been severely criticized. I, myself have come in for my share of abuse and have been called "traitor to the Jewish cause,"etc. Among my severest critics were those who a little less than a year ago, when Joseph Singer was a candidate for office on the Liberal ticket, were most vigorous and active in their opposition to him. At that time they did not consider themselves traitors to the Jewish cause."

I want to reiterate my position. I do not consider the Jews a national minority in Canada, who are entitled to minority representation. I consider the Jews of Canada as Canadians, who profess Judaism as a religion. I do not know of any vital political issue with the exception of immigration in which the Jews as Jews have specific interests. On all other political issues the Jews are hopelessly

MEMBERS AND STILL MORE MEMBERS

Compared with the non-Jews, the Toronto Jewish community need not be ashamed of its charitable endeavours. Our Jewish population is approximately forty thousand, and the annual donations to the Federation of charities alone amount to some hundred thousand dollars. The per capita average is two and one-half dollars. The Toronto community at large, numbering about six hundred thousand people, could not raise a chest of half a million dollars, no less than one dollar per capita.

The difficulty with our Jewish Federation is that while some individuals donate comparatively handsomely, a large number of prosperous people escape giving altogether. When it comes to giving charity no one can advance the glib excuse that he does not believe in the idea of charity. This excuse does service during Zionist campaigns, and campaigns for other institutions of a cultural nature. In charity the motive is a very elementary one, and the person who refuses to give charity must expose himself in his true colours.

The local Federation of charities is now conducting a very reasonable campaign to reach those who have hitherto shirked. The term "shirked" may perhaps be too strong, because it is conceivable that large numbers of those who are not on the list of subscribers have never been reached and appealed to before. These people should now be afforded the privilege of doing their share in relieving distress among their neighbours.

It is gratifying to note that the Federation has now attained a condition where it can count on the continuous support of a permanent membership without having to resort to campaigning methods to retain its support. The Federation is efficiently managed. Its facilities, however, are not fully exploited through the inadequacy of its budget. There is no reason why the remainder of the community should leave the responsibility to the few who are willing to bear it. Every one who does not require to receive charity should be a giver. The membership of the Federation must be increased in order that the needy shall not be turned back empty-handed.

LOUIS DEMBITZ BRANDEIS

Canadian Jews are happy to join their American brothers in extending hearty felicitations to Louis D. Brandeis on the occasion of his seventieth birthday which he celebrated last week.

It is not an idle contention that the Jewish element is a valuable factor in the life of any country where it is allowed free scope for the exercise of its genius. Often the strange and perhaps unattractive features of its character gain undue conspicuousness. But the deeper qualities which have made the persistence of the integrity of the Jewish people possible through the ages are bound to assist themselves in varibus channels of communal life. Unfortunately the elevating influence of the Jewish spirit on its surroundings is not always readily apprehensible, nor fully appreciated. It is only when the Jews contribute an outstanding personality in any sphere of achievement that the value of Jewish contribution is noticed.

MISS RUTH DRAPER

Miss Ruth Draper, whose recitals have caused such a tremendous sensation in New York, London and Paris, will come to Windsor Hall on November 26. This spring in Paris she had the unique distinction paid her by M. Lugne Poe, of having been invited to appear at his Theatre de l'Oeuvre, an experience accorded but few non-French artists. As an artist and entertainer Miss Draper is original in every way. She is not a monologist in the old-fashioned sense. She needs no scenery, no draperies to help portray her characters, and yet she creates an atmosphere that is the true background of whatever sketch she is giving. Her art is thus distinctive, and it is really Miss Draper's unusual personality that permits of such a versatile and delightfully entertaining form of dramatic performance. According to the critics, it is counted a real triumph to be able to create an entertainment of such infinitely appealing and human a quality without the assistance of any settings and yet one so wonderfully true to life.

"When the Queen visited Toronto the other day, she received a memorial from the Ukrainian people of that city which did not exaggerate the truth. 'In general,' it read, 'we are convinced that the living conditions of our brethren under your government are deplorable and far worse than they were before the great war, and we, as citizens of a free country, deem it our duty to respectfully draw your attention to these facts.'

"She deserves more of this kind of greeting. It is not necessary to treat her pharisaically or with discourtesy or to hide or deny our very natural interest in and regard for royalty, but we certainly might take such a person more casually than is indicated when hundreds of women stand patiently in line to sit for a moment in a chair which had been warmed by the somewhat elderly Marie. We might remember, before we begin throwing our hats in the air, some of the things behind the Queen's smile." —Judge Magazine.

When the United Roumanian Jews of Illinois invited Superior Judge Joseph B. David to serve on a committee to welcome Queen Marie he sent the following letter in reply:

"I have yours of the 5th inviting me as a member of the reception committee of the United Roumanian Jews of Illinois to receive the Queen of Roumania, and in reply will state, I most respectfully decline to accept your invitation, given, no doubt, in good faith. My declination is justified by the treatment of the Jews by the government of Roumania, a government of bigotry, intolerance and persecution."

Harry Houdini was more than a master magician. People regret his death not merely because, by it, the world lost its greatest mystifier, but because of the versatility of the man and the strongly human quality of his personality.

Houdini broke out of the Siberian prison van in Moscow. With his hands handcuffed behind him and seventy-five pounds of ball chain to his body he leaped into San Francisco bay and escaped. He released himself under water after he had leaped, heavily handcuffed, from Belle Island Bridge, Detroit, in zero weather. In his East Indian needle mystery he swallowed over fifty needles and twenty yards of thread and brought up the needles threaded. These stunts and many more with which he baffled multitudes all over the world won him fame and more right to the name of magician than many others had who claimed supernatural powers.

But Houdini, although professional, always insisted that what he did he did by science or trickery and nothing more. Writing in "Collier's Magazine" in 1925, Houdini said that the average pedestrian crossing a busy street when the traffic cop was not looking took more risks than he did in most of his heavy stunts. He said that in thirty years, when he had in all four close-ups of death, it was no magic which helped him—only luck, skill, will and presence of mind.

It is told of Houdini that he denied his occult powers when to claim them might have given him even more unique position than that which he held as mystifier. The story goes that in May, 1903, when Houdini broke out of the prison van in Moscow he created such a furore that he was invited later to a party of army officers and royal persons. There Houdini was asked to be soothsayer to the court, a position later held by the black monk, Rasputin. He not only refused, but made it a point thereafter to expose fakirs who said they could perform miracles or give supernatural performances.

Houdini made no secret of the fact that he was not of Oriental origin. He was born in 1874 in Appleton, Wis., the son of Rabbi Samuel Mayer Weiss. The visit of a circus to his town fired his ambition to be a sleight-of-hand artist who could take rabbits, ribbons and poultry out of a hat. His mother therefore sent him to a locksmith to learn a more stable trade. But later he left to make trips around the world and was known as "Handcuff Harry."

Although the value of his estate is unknown, Houdini left a library valued at $500,000 to be divided among the Congressional Library at Washington, the American Society for Psychical Research, and his wife. Houdini was his own business manager, he was the author of a number of books on his art, he wrote for syndicates, he headed the Houdini Pictures, Inc., and yet found time to render service, by showing up fakirs who preyed on the gullibility of the public through seances and spiritualistic sittings.

That Houdini's faith was in Judaism is shown by one clause in his will. His brother, Theodore Weiss Hardeen, to whom he willed his tricks (some of them as yet unrevealed), is to receive a portion of the estate's income, but only on one condition. His sons must be confirmed in either the Reform or Orthodox Jewish faith within three months of the date of Houdini's death.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Vineberg, Moore Street, Sherbrooke, Que., the wedding took place of Miss Lilian Vineberg to Sol Fels, of Montreal, in the presence of sixty guests. In the drawing room pink roses and white chrysanthemums, palms and ferns were employed in decoration and to make a bower at one end of the room where the ceremony took place, performed by Rev. S. Goldstein, of Montreal. The bride entered on the arm of her brother-in-law, J. L. Vineberg, and wore a gown of white satin-dotted crepe de chine over white taffeta, long tulle veil fastened with orange blossoms, and carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley in a shower. She wore for ornament a pearl necklace, an heirloom in the family of the groom whose gift it was. The maid-of-honour, Miss Nellie Vineberg, wore a frock of mousseline de soie with lace applique over pale pink and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Etta and Leah Vineberg, wore silk muslin over pale blue and carried red roses. Groomsmen were Jack Cousman, Julius Rill, Peter Bercovitch, of Montreal, and Joseph Rosenbloom, of Sherbrooke. The couple stood under a canopy of white satin, fringed with gold, held by the groomsmen. At the wedding supper the bridal table was decorated with white roses and smilax and the company was served in the dining and sitting rooms. Mr. and Mrs. Fels left for New York and other American cities to return later to Montreal. The bride's going-away gown was of navy blue ladies' cloth with blue toque and white silk blouse. Officers of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue: President, M. A. Vineberg; vice-president and parnass, H. Kellert; treasurer, Lyon Cohen, all re-elected; secretary, Charles Sissenwain; directors, F. Ship, M. ANTI-SEMITES RIOT IN VIENNA AND BUDAPEST

The serious anti-Jewish riots that occurred in Vienna recently were caused by the Nationalists' dissatisfaction with proposals made by Mr. Breitner, the Rapporteur on Finance of the City Council. Jews were attacked in the streets and Jewish shops and restaurants were broken in. A general attack on the Jewish quarter was obviated by the timely interference of the police.

The suicide of Dr. Paul Kammerer, a noted Austrian biologist, was traced directly to his despondency over the fact that he was refused a professorship at the University of Vienna because of his Jewish origin.

The Hungarian anti-semites staged a demonstration against the Government, when a Jewish physician, Dr. Adam, one of the most noted surgeons in Hungary, was appointed professor at the Medical College of the Budapest University. Although the appointment was made by Count Klebelsberg, the Minister of Education, and was approved by Regent Horthy, the Hungarian youth associations began demonstrations and sent delegations to the authorities demanding the immediate cancellation of the appointment. A Jewish instructor in the veterinary department, Dr. Georg, was so severely beaten by a number of anti-semitic students that he was left unconscious on the campus.

DIVISION IN ANTI-SEMITIC RANKS

There is evidence of serious schisms in the ranks of the various anti-Semitic organizations in Europe. We reported recently in these columns the misunderstandings that arose among the Rumanian anti-Semitics which brought about a split in the party. All the reactionary forces there had been concentrated until recently in the Christian League of National Defense, which was led by Professor Alexander Cuza. This has now split into three hostile camps, each led by a different person. The organization which still retains the old name, the Students' Organization, led by Zelea Cordeanu, was organized and lately the Moderate Students' Organization was formed by Tudore Popea, which stands between Codreanu's aggressive policy and Cuza's new parliamentary tactics.

Now we are informed that the Hackenkreuzler organization of Austria is also on the brink of dissolution, because of the selfish ambitions of Adolph Hitler, the organizer and leader of this movement both in Austria and in Germany. This was made manifest at a recent convention of the organization when the Austrian leader, Schutz, declared in an address that it would be impossible for the Austrian organization to continue existence under the leadership of Hitler.

A demonstration of the Hackenkreuzler was held in Vienna recently, when a group of the hooligans made for the Jewish quarter, with the cry: "Down with the Jews! Let us destroy the Jewish ghetto!" The police, however, were prompt in quelling the riot, although not without some casualties. Several of the ringleaders were wounded as were also some of the police. Sixty persons were placed under arrest, although all of them, with the exception of sixteen, were set free after an hour.

Several rabbis, including the leader of the Hasidim in Palestine, were among a crowd of Jews who were attacked by Arabs at the Wailing Wall where they assembled on Friday to offer their prayers.

Fires in the Fall

Sing a song of seasons!
Something bright in all!
Flowers in the summer,
Fires in the fall!
—R. L. STEVENSON
(A Child's Garden of Verses)

NO WRITER ever wrote more beautiful and tender verse for children than did R. L. Stevenson. He loved to write of that precious hour just before bedtime—the hour when armies march, when fairies dance, when the fire is full of a number of things that make little children as happy as kings!

You know how your children love the fire, not only for its comfort, but for its brightness, too. And what gives more joy to the heart of a mother than the fireglow on the happy child face.

Gas Fires well described as "Radiant" can be seen at our Display Rooms, 55 Adelaide Street East or at Demonstrators Limited, 733 Yonge Street, at Bloor.

dividuality with international training expressing itself under the influence of the Canadian atmosphere. Miss Kallmeyer came to Toronto at an early age and became a pupil of McGillivray Knowles. divided as is the rest of the Canadian public. Free traders and protectionists, O.T.A. supporters and opponents are found in Jewish as well as in Protestant circles. The political views of people are determined by other factors than their religious affiliation. We Jews have always insisted that church and state should be separate. We Jews know what tragedy there impends for all when religious issues enter political life. At a recent Conservative convention, the cries of "Kill the Jew" were heard, indicating all the bitterness and malice of religious fanaticism and hatred. Such fanaticism in public life is surely to be deplored.

Though I am of the opinion that Jews as Jews need no representatives, I do not believe that Jews who have talents and abilities for public service should be rejected for office because of their religious affiliations. I protest as much as the most chauvinistic Jew the rejection of a man for public office merely because of his Judaism, just as Methodists would resent the constant rejection of able Methodists by political parties because of their Methodism. Some Conservative Ward Associations in Toronto, by their continuous rejection of Jews of ability for nominations for provincial and federal honours, have thrown themselves open to the suspicion that they are discriminating against men for religious reasons. If such is the case, then it is violating one of the finest of British traditions. Though the United Kingdom has but a handful of Jews, it has many Jews in Parliament, and it has had Jews to whom the highest political honours have been given, as Benjamin Disraeli, Rufus Isaacs (now Marquis of Reading), Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Alfred Mond, etc. These Jews in public life outnumber considerably the proportion of public officials to which Jews of the United Kingdom, because of their numbers, are entitled. These men did not represent the Jews, but they represented their constituencies. Similarly in Canada, religious discrimination should play no part in the award of public honours. Some Conservative Ward Associations of Toronto are giving the impression that they are guilty of such discrimination against Jews. With such a policy we have no sympathy, and against such a policy we urge the protest of all who love the British ideal of fair play and justice.

American Jewry has furnished many intellects who have helped to enrich American cultural life. In the sciences, in art and in the new American literature which purports to register the tempo of modern American life, the Jews of America have given more than their share. But in these it is difficult to isolate the specifically Jewish note. The scholars and scientists wear the halo of their callings. The poets and the critics, belonging for the most part to the ultra-modern schools, bear the colours of their cults. It is only perhaps the very subtle analyst that can detect the Jewish strain in their motives.

In the sphere of politics and jurisprudence the Jews of America have produced one celebrity who can truly be said to exemplify the finest qualities of the Jewish temperament. There are many Jewish jurists and politicians of note. There is one man who embodies the characteristics of the Jewish race at its best. This man is Louis D. Brandeis.

As an intellect, Brandeis ranked high in his profession. What made him stand out among his fellows, however, was his intense passion for justice. Brandeis was famous as a lawyer. He was more famous as a humanitarian, as a fighter for the victims of modern industrial conditions. He is a leader on the bench. His hold on public affection is gained by his broadmindedness, and inspired vision in dealing out justice.

Brandeis is not a maudlin idealist. He is a practical man of action. But his practicality is not made of the stuff of selfishness. It is the result of a balanced understanding of the needs of life, and a determination to perserve in his conduct the equilibrium of justice.

Brandeis needed but to come in contact with Jewish life to grasp readily its deepest implications. His analytical mind quickly discerned that Jewish life in all its fullness and variegated richness can be intelligible only in terms of nationalism. And Brandeis became a devoted Zionist. Brandeis, the Kentucky gentleman, the cultured jurist, the ruthless exposer of the insurance scandals, suddenly realized that he was a Jew, and going to the logical limit of Jewishness became an ardent Zionist.

It is unfortunate that the exigencies of the American political situation constrained Brandeis to sever his active connection with the Zionist organization upon his elevation to the Bench. Brandeis, among the active leaders of Zionism, would have exerted a tremendous influence on world Zionism, and would have considerably accelerated its progress.

A leader in the realm of jurisprudence, a true liberal, a battler for justice, a profoundly understanding Jew, Brandeis looms before American Jewry as its finest product and contribution to American life.—A.B.B.

An Appeal by the President of the Federation of the Jewish Philanthropies of Toronto

On the eve of the Federation membership campaign, I wish to appeal to my fellow-Jews of Toronto for their generous support. The Federation represents the entire Jewish community in its broad and constructive programme of philanthropy. The Federation is the recognized and accepted agency of the Jewish people of Toronto for the relief of its poor, the care of its orphans, the protection of its boys and girls.

The present campaign is for new members only. We need at least 1,000 additional members. In other communities, the Jewish Federation comprises from seven per cent. to over ten per cent. of the community. In Toronto we have at present less than four per cent. The Federation is now completing ten years of service. As its income has increased, its power for good has broadened. Ten years ago the Federation received less than $40,000. This year its income will exceed $85,000. Ten years ago the Federation expended less than $20,000 for relief of the poor. This year it is spending over $40,000.

How much more can we do with an increased membership and an increased income? Will you help?

(Signed) HARRY ROTENBERG.

Lewis L. Strauss, New York banker, and Mrs. Strauss sailed from Vancouver for the Orient. Mr. Strauss, a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., is identified with efforts to rebuild Palestine. In the world war he was private secretary to Herbert Hoover as United States Food Administrator.

Professor Franz Oppenheimer, of the University of Frankfort, recently returned from Palestine, gave a pessimistic report of the situation there in a lecture in Vienna. He believes that agricultural colonization, which he long fathered as a solution of the surplus population problem, is a total failure, and blames socialistic and communistic influences. He sees a "strong man" as the only salvation of the Palestine colonies. Professor Oppenheimer denounced the usury in loans to farmers and said the Zionists must resign themselves to the idea of the Arabs remaining in a majority in Palestine and give up their imperialistic schemes.

Dr. Haim Weizmann will sail for the United States on October 23, with the view of perfecting here the organization of the Jewish Agency. Dr. Weizmann has recently had an interview with Premier Mussolini on the situation in Palestine.

Ten times as much yearly income is necessary to enjoy the "amenities of life" in the United States as in England, Sir Alfred Mond, M.P., said, in London, in summing up his impressions after a visit to America. The servant problem and apartment house existence appeared to him as the worst phases of American social life. He had the highest praise for the American national wealth and industrial self-efficiency. As to living in New York, he expressed doubts.

LOEW'S

W. C. Fields will again rock Loew's Theatre with laughter next week, for the famous artist of pantomime will be featured on the screen in his second starring production, "So's Your Old Man," a gay and natural story of small town life, its feuds and ambitions.

This picture, adapted from Julian Street's O. Henry Memorial Prize Short Story, "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," is the very human tale of one Samuel Bisbee, glazier and village character of Waukeagus. The despair of his wife and daughter, he has invented an unbreakable glass windshield whichhe hopes will make their fortune.

"So's Your Old Man" is unreservedly recommended as good light entertainment. Alice Joyce and Charles Rogers are featured. Gregory La Cava, director of the last three Richard Dix successes, directed.

Alex Hyde with "Berlin vs. Liszt" will top an excellent vaudeville programme.

Gaston and Andree come to America for a brief vaudeville tour with a programme composed of six numbers—each an original and effective dance creation. Other features on the programme are Willie, West and McGinty, "House Builders," in a comedy of errors. HEBREW UNIVERSITY AT JERUSALEM GROWS

The authorities of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem plan to erect a central building with the aid of a trust fund of $500,000 left by Sol Rosenbloom, of Pittsburgh, to house the Institute of Jewish Studies and the School of Oriental Studies.

Dr. Judah Magnes, acting Chancellor of the university, has just returned to Jerusalem after conferring in London with the Board of Governors of the university and in Paris with the Governing Council of the Institute of Jewish Studies.

He says a new chair of general chemistry in addition to that of organic chemistry is to be founded. A director is to be chosen for the proposed Microbiological Institute, which has the support of the American Jewish Physicians' Committee.

The board has approved of a hygiene department and has decided to increase the budget for the Institute of Palestine Natural History. Professor Landau, of Gottingen, has been invited to start a mathematics institute. The administration hopes to begin the building of an institute of physics under the supervision of Professor Ornstein, of Holland.

Seven professors, now teaching in the Institute of Jewish Studies, are to be retained, two of them permanently. The new appointments include Dr. Arthur Ruppin for Jewish sociology and anthropology; David Yellin for Hebrew poetry, and Dr. Sukenik as field archaeologist. Chairs in Bible philosophy, history and Talmudic jurisprudence are being established.

According to statistics recently published by the Jewish Science Institute of Moscow, intermarriage between Jews and Gentiles in Russia has increased to alarming proportions. Almost ten per cent. of all recorded marriages were between Jews and Gentiles.

Gilbert Frankau, the Anglo-Jewish novelist, made an attack on the Jewish method of slaughtering animals in the anti-Semitic Morning Post. Mr. Frankau describes his impressions of a visit to Chicago where he visited the "yards",

Lady Battersea's Memoirs in the Canadian Jewish Review

Since Giovanni de' Medici, the old merchant-banker of Florence, founded his dynasty in the fourteenth century, no family in Europe has risen so high, or has spread so wide an influence, as the descendants of Mayer Amschel Rothschild, the merchant-banker of Frankfort-on-the-Main, who, originally destined for the rabbinate, found another sphere of useful service. The Medici gave a pope to Rome as well as a queen to France, and the Rothschilds made their mark in the history of Europe. The story starts with Mayer Amschel, who was born in 1744, and who with his wife Gudule, had a family of nineteen children. He lived, as we all know, in the Judengasse at Frankfort, in a house numbered 148, and it is by an odd coincidence that his great-great-grandson, Lord Rothschild, lives at 148 Piccadilly. From 148 to 148 is a long way—from the famous Judengasse to Piccadilly.

THE SHORT CUT

Every advertisement in your paper is a short cut. Advertisements make it possible to tell you in a few minutes all you want to know about the service or articles you need.

At a glance you can sift what interests you most and in a moment you know just when and where to go for what you want.

Figure how many steps, how much needless walking and talking the advertisements thus save you and your neighbors.

Then you realize the great economy and necessity of advertising in your daily life.
